Did you know?

(facts from www.esfi.org)

- Many older homes were built with electrical systems and components which are no longer safe and may be considered fire hazards.
- It is estimated that six to 12 children die annually from severe shock and burns due to sticking objects into electrical outlets. The National Electric Code (NEC) now requires Tamper-Resistant receptacles in all newly-constructed homes.
- Ground Fault Circuit Interrupters (GFCIs) prevent deadly shock by cutting off the electricity flow if any ground fault or leakage current is detected. GFCIs should be used in any location where water may come into contact with electrical products.

Over half homes in the United States were built before 1973. With many homes loaded with electronic components—including entertainment and security systems, computerized appliances, and modern lighting. Power loads are being placed on aging home wiring that in many cases surpass what they were originally built to handle. Growing energy and technology demands present the need to increase the efficiency of your home to reduce waste and ensure safety.

Our Service Protection & Maintenance Plan can provide you, our customer, with peace of mind knowing you and your home will always be safe. This security is available at a minimal cost to you. For only $ 21.95 per month, your home can be covered against electrical hazards. Included in this plan:
